

Famous Maryland Resorts Yield $4,000 in 'Wet Goods' To Prince George's Sheriff

In twenty-four hours $4,000 worth of alcoholic liquors have been seized in Prince George County, Md., as the result of many alleged violations of that county's new liquor law.

FAMOUS RESORTS SEARCHED.

As a sequel to the many raids that were executed Friday by deputy Sheriff Thomas H. Garrison and his assistants, yesterday brought search of many of Maryland's famous old resorts.

The well-known Ram's Horn Inn, near Hyattsville, Md., headed the list of those places entered yesterday. The liquors valued at $1,000 were seized.

Deputy Sheriff Garrison and his deputies in twenty-four hours, have seized over 500 quarts of alcoholic liquors. When his roadhouse was entered the liquors alleged to have been stored there, A. H. Meier, proprietor of the Ram's Horn Inn, was arrested by Sheriff Garrison. Meier was taken to police headquarters at Bladensburg, Md., where he presented as did those arrested Friday, $500 bond and was released.

His case, with the cases of the five moonshiners who were arrested Friday, will be heard next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, at Bladensburg before Justice Alfred D. Bailey. No liquors were found yesterday at any of the roadhouses visited except at the Ram's Horn Inn. The other places visited were: The Lord Bessinger Inn, at Riverdale, Md.; the Lord Baltimore, himself, once raided and rumor has it that famous statesmen have slept in every one of its many rooms; the roadhouse of Phillip J. Steubener, on the Bladensburg road; the Gentlemen's Driving Club, also on the Bladensburg road, and the White House Tavern, on the Baltimore boulevard.

With County Officers William H. Rubin, Wallace C. Ralston and Town Marshall John Painter, of Hyattsville, Deputy Sheriff Garrison started on his tour of raids yesterday morning at 10 o'clock.

Warrants Issued.

After the seizure of liquors at the Ram's Horn Inn search warrants were procured from Justice Bailey commanding the following men to open the doors of their establishments for inspection:

A. F. Lofstrand, proprietor of the Lord Baltimore Inn; Philip J. Steubener, proprietor of a road house; G. M. Mater, proprietor of the Gentlemen's Driving Club, and George W. Coldenstath, proprietor of the White House Tavern.

Although the task of searching these latter places took all day, Sheriff Garrison found no alcoholic beverages.

Garrison reported that from the Ram's Horn Inn he took 32½ pint bottles of whiskey, 30 pint bottles of gin, 99 quart bottles of various kinds of intoxicants, 5 jugs of intoxicating liquors, and 4 cases of beer.

At one of the places entered it was necessary to drag the proprietor from the coal bin, according to Garrison. Statements procured from some of the men whose places were raided

THOMAS H. GARRISON, deputy sheriff of Prince George County who by drastically enforcing the county "dry" law, has confiscated $4,000 worth of liquor.

Friday and yesterday said that they did not have time to transfer their goods away from the country or could not procure the necessary help.

Recently the State Legislature of Maryland passed a law for Prince George's county that no person or persons could have in his or her possession more than one quart of whiskey and twelve pints of beer a month.

Dealers to Test Law.

At a meeting of the liquor dealers of the county this law was charged to be unjust and it is alleged that they agreed that on November 1, when the law went into effect, to store their goods and that on November 7, they should bring out their goods again for sale in order that a test case could be made of the law.

The liquor dealers' cause for criticism of the law is said to have arisen from the fact that their licenses did not expire until the first of May, 1917. The pile of confiscated beverages that lay guarded all Friday night in front of the office of Sheriff Garrison at Hyattsville, was yesterday moved into his house to await the disposition of the court.

refreshments. Announcement of patronesses will be made later. Members of the chapter are requested to bring their fancy articles to the next meeting, November 12.

The program will include original compositions by Miss Helen Josephine Johnson, recitations by Miss Margaret Ford Perkins, a contralto solo by Miss Caroline Manning, a violin solo by Miss Lillian Koechling and Hawaiian songs and dances by Miss Ruth Hoffman. The entertainers, under the direction of Mrs. Florence Donohue, will provide refreshments for the men in uniform.

Since the war began the employment of women in the British metal industries has increased 54 per cent.

LEADERS FAVOR LA FOLLETTE'S WAR TAX IDEA

Congress Likely to Switch to Excess Profits for Raising Huge Sum.

By JOHN C. MELLETT.

Somebody is going to steal Senator La Follette's thunder. There is a lot of his thunder nobody would have, but there is one particular cloudburst for which several United States Senators already are scrambling. It consists of his campaign to raise war funds by heavier taxation and lighter bond sales.

Congress went away a few weeks ago, exhausted after having authorized war expenditures totaling $21,000,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918.

Congress is coming back six weeks hence, to tackle the task of raising $22,000,000,000 more, and apportioning it with the original $21,000,000,000 over a period of two years ending June 30, 1919.

How to Raise Money.

Here is where Senator La Follette's thunder comes in. With the staggering figures to be provided, the question naturally arises—"How?" The difficulty is conceded to lie in the raising of $22,000,000,000 by bond sales. Experts assert the country positively cannot assimilate that amount in two years. It would be ruinous, they say. Even if it could be done, some consideration should be given to the problem of meeting interest and principal on all the loans in after years.

Castling about for a way out of the difficulty, conservative leaders find nothing but Senator La Follette's excess war profits taxes. Since he made his bitter fight for the war profits plan in the last session, and was defeated time after time, two things have developed:

First, that the administration really, in secret, sympathized with the La Follette plan but deemed it inadvisable to support him.

Second, that conservative leaders, while opposing him openly, confidentially declared his plan was the most scientific war revenue producer Congress had seen.

At this session, it is predicted, the administration forces, both Democratic and progressive Republicans like Senators Borah and Johnson, will support the La Follette war profits idea. It is rumored now, however, that La Follette and his friends will take an advanced stand for taxing war profits so heavily it will amount to virtually complete confiscation.

The gain in the number of British women workers since 1914 has been 1,250,000, or 25.5 per cent.

Postoffice Clock on a Spree Since November 1

Refuses to Run Entirely After Two Days of Unpardonable Antics—Other Public Clocks Appear to Be "Dazed."

Since the departure of John Barleycorn, November 1, the public clocks of Washington have become laggard in their duties.

The clock on the postoffice at tale writing (1915 a. m.) is joyfully pointing out the time to be ten minutes to four. The clock has been running ten minutes before or behind time for the last three days. Yesterday morning, when the hands of the clock were pointing to an hour about ten minutes ahead of old Father Time himself, government clerks swept at a break-neck pace through the city to get to their desks before the fatal chime. In the afternoon many late dinners were caused by the fact that the hands refused to proceed past 3:50 o'clock.

All the Commuters Fooled.

The Saturday afternoon commuters, stepping to Washington for their Sunday purchases, found that they had gained their respective tasks in an impossible way. The clock calmly dropped into the comfortable seats of

Community Band Will Stick to Settlement

There was a well attended meeting of the newly organized community band in the Franklin School building. It was the fourth rehearsal of the band, which is under the leadership of R. R. Stratton. During a short intermission there were addresses by Miss Cecil B. Norton and Ernest L. Thurston, superintendent of schools.

Mr. Stratton congratulated the band on the enthusiasm with which its work was being carried on. Proof of its popularity, he stated, was demonstrated by the fact that many prominent organized bodies of the city had earnestly endeavored to have the band identify itself solely with them. He added that the band would identify itself solely with the community settlement.

Miss Norton briefly reviewed the progress made by the community settlement, through its different branches since 1914, when permission was first granted for using public school buildings for community work.

Mr. Thurston said that the work of the band was primarily along educational lines and that it was proper to use the educational buildings for its meetings. He approved of the community spirit particularly in war times and expressed the hope that the new organization would increase in the community movement.

DENMARK BARS BRITISH FLEET FROM BALTIC

England's Naval Critic Replies to Premier Kerensky's Question

For the British fleet to come to the aid of Russia in the Baltic would require the conquest of Sweden and Denmark or their conversion to the allied cause. This was the answer made here yesterday by Arthur Pollen, the distinguished British naval critic to Premier Kerensky's question, "Where was the British fleet?" Pollen does not blame Premier Kerensky for his question. "I have known statesmen of far more experience than Kerensky to be equally ignorant of naval matters," he said. "Asquith had been premier of England longer than Kerensky has held office, and was backed by the best military and naval opinion in the empire when he undertook the Dardanelles campaign, yet follies without parallel in history were committed in that attempt."

The conquest of Sweden or her conversion to the allied cause Pollen believes would be more difficult than the results would justify. The first move to acquire Denmark to the allied cause would result in the overrunning of that country by the Germans as was Belgium overrun. "It is a political question, not a naval one," M. Pollen said. "It was not the decision of the British admiralty, but the decision of all the allies, that kept our fleet out of the Baltic."

"When the German fleet pushed into the Gulf of Riga there was no attempt to force the mine fields by naval means. Instead a military operation of considerable magnitude captured the islands and the forces which controlled these mine fields. "In the same way it would be impossible for the British fleet to force its way through the mine fields of the Kattegat and Skagerrack. The mine are held by those who are at last neutral. Certainly the Swedes are friendly. Denmark would be German within a week after the first British ship went through."

"If it is true that our destroyers have engaged and beaten German destroyers it is indeed a naval triumph," he said. "The raiders were undoubtedly armed with six-inch guns. Our destroyers carry nothing larger than a four-inch. That they outgauge the Germans under such circumstances means superlative shooting and maneuvering."

"I judge that the encounter was brought about through information reaching our admiralty of a projected escape of German raiders through these waters."

"It is not the German fleet that protects these shores. It is the German mine fields. It has been proven impossible to attack a mined area of this sort without first capturing the land points that control the mines."

He further stated today that the British have undoubtedly captured many more German raiders, both converted merchantmen and submarines, than has been made public. He praised the policy of the British admiralty in keeping silent on these matters so that the Germans might believe their raiders at work.
